PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

Portfolio Manager, Vince Pezzullo discusses recent performance of the PIC portfolio and how he is positioning the portfolio against the backdrop of current economic conditions including the rotation to value stocks.

The PIC portfolio returned 4.9%** in April, outperforming the S&P/ASX 300 Accumulation Index (Benchmark) return by +1.2%. This continues strong performance over the year with the portfolio returning 47.6%** in the 12 months to 30 April 2021, outperforming the Benchmark by +16.0%.

The Benchmark surged over the psychologically important 7,000 point hurdle during April. "Reopening momentum" led the market to advance after trading in a narrow band since the start of the year. Talk of a large infrastructure stimulus in the US permeated through global markets and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) upgraded the forecast for Australian economic growth in 2021 from 3.5% to 4.5%. Australian business conditions (trading, profitability and employment) rose to the highest levels ever recorded since the National Australia Bank (NAB) survey began in 1997. A number of growth stocks extended their weakness from earlier in the year as concerns around valuations and rising inflation fears lingered in the background. Commodity prices continued their upward march with iron ore prices moving from $165 to $185 a tonne.

PIC continues to be a beneficiary of the rotation to value stocks. Our active management style also means we can take advantage of market volatility to position the portfolio in a way that is unavailable to index investors. Importantly, we continue to identify numerous opportunities in the Australian and global market to generate income and capital growth for the portfolio. This is reflective of the portfolio being almost fully invested with just 1.7% cash as at 30 April 2021. The PIC portfolio has been positioned with cyclical companies which we expect to benefit from reopening economies, and which complement the portfolio's long-term positions in companies we believe are experiencing structural growth.

The top contributors to absolute performance for the PIC portfolio in April were La Francaise Des Jeux (PAR: FDJ), BlueScope Steel Limited (ASX: BSL) and Boral Limited (ASX: BLD). FDJ which returned 11.0% in April has been in the portfolio since 2019 and is a prime example of a company we believe is experiencing long-term structural growth. This is predominantly through their ongoing margin expansion with the shift from retail sales to online sales. During the month, BSL increased its earnings guidance for 2H FY2021 to be in the range of $1.0 billion to $1.08 billion subject to spread, foreign exchange and market conditions. This is up from its prior guidance of $750 million to $830 million. BLD performed well after finalising the US$1.02 billion sale of its 50% stake in its USG Boral joint venture to Germany's Gebr Knauf KG. Management reported that it expects to generate a post-tax profit of A$450 million (US $341.9 million) on the divestment and intend on using the proceeds to reduce its net debt position from ~$1.9 billion to its target of $1.5 billion, and to distribute surplus capital via an on-market buyback of up to 10% of its shares on issue over the next 12 months.

In addition to BSL and BLD, materials and mining companies in the PIC portfolio have more broadly benefited the portfolio and cemented our views that they are likely to be key beneficiaries of economic recovery. Western Areas Limited (ASX: WSA), Deterra Royalties Limited (ASX: DRR) and Iluka Resources Limited (ASX: ILU) were all contributors to absolute performance in April.

The largest detractors to absolute performance were Flutter Entertainment Plc (LON: FLTR), Oil Search Limited (ASX: OSH) and Qantas Airways Limited (ASX: QAN). After a strong run-up over the last year, FLTR's share price consolidated in April despite releasing a strong first quarter update in late April. We remain optimistic around the long-term opportunity for the business and believe FLTR is undervalued at current levels. FLTR remains a key position in the portfolio. OSH's share price was impacted as oil prices fell in April. This came as fears mounted that global outbreaks of COVID-19 might suppress oil demand. QAN's share price was also impacted by the concerns lingering about new strains of COVID-19 which have disrupted a return to more normalised travel arrangements. We are of the view that QAN have successfully reset their cost base through their recent restructuring. Although these stocks were detractors for the portfolio in April, they have been more than offset by the returns generated by other stocks in the portfolio and our investment thesis remains strong.

**Returns have been calculated on the growth of Net Tangible Assets (NTA) after taking into account all operating expenses (including management fees) and assuming reinvestment of dividends and excluding tax paid. Any provisions for deferred tax on unrealised gains and losses are excluded. Past performance is not indicative of future performance. Inception date is 18 December 2014. Portfolio and Index return may not sum to Excess Return due to rounding.

DEXUS (ASX: DXS) (ANALYST - GUY BUNCE)

Dexus (ASX: DXS) is an Australian Real Estate Investment Trust (A-REIT) that derives the majority of its earnings from rental income received from directly owning Australian property. DXS also has an unlisted funds management business where they receive management fees based on the assets under management on behalf of third party capital partners.

2020 was a tough year for A-REITs generally, but particularly those with a material exposure to the Office sector. With around 75% of its income from Office Investment Properties, DXS was severely impacted and its share price fell from $13.42 in February 2020 to a low of $8.03 only a month later. This was driven by analyst and investor concerns about the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on office occupancy, rent, incentives, income, and ultimately asset valuations. The consensus view was that COVID-19 would lead to a significant structural decline in the demand for office space. However, we took a different view.

In our view, offices will continue to play a critical role in most people's working lives. It is a place for collaboration, innovation, culture building, upskilling, career progression and social interaction. We would argue that most of these things are difficult to achieve through a virtual network. And it would appear that others agree – with the physical occupancy of our CBDs continuing to grow as COVID-19 restrictions are removed. For example, the Property Council of Australia estimates that offices in the Sydney CBD had an occupancy rate of 59% in April 2021, up from a low of 35% in September 2020. More importantly, a number of direct property investors appear to agree with us. Since early last year, there have been a number of direct market transactions either at or above the building's net tangible asset value. For example, 452 Flinders St, Melbourne, 60 Miller St, North Sydney and 10 Eagle St, Brisbane.

At its March 2020 low, DXS was trading at close to a 30% discount to its net tangible asset backing. As at April 2021, DXS is trading at less than a 10% discount as analysts and investors concerns have faded. We continue to see significant value in this stock.

As at 30 April 2021, DXS comprised 3.8% of the PIC portfolio.
